Research on Overall Satisfaction of Haikou Mission Hills New City Community – From The Perspectives of Residents And Tourists

Abstract/Executive Summary

With an emphasis on both locals and visitors, this study investigates consumer satisfaction at Mission Hills Haikou, an integrated resort in Hainan, China. The study finds that facilities, service quality, and recreational opportunities are important determinants of overall happiness by examining both quantitative survey data and qualitative comments. The results indicate that while visitors value a variety of recreational pursuits, residents value accessibility and customer service more. These observations have important ramifications for customizing services to each group's unique requirements, which will improve client experiences and sustain long-term happiness at Mission Hills Haikou.

Introduction

For tourist locations to succeed, especially in cutthroat marketplaces like Haikou, Hainan, customer satisfaction is essential. Mission Hills Haikou is a well-known integrated resort that provides a variety of experiences, from sports and wellness to entertainment and leisure. Finding the main factors that influence satisfaction and examining any notable distinctions between the two groups require an understanding of the satisfaction levels of both locals and visitors to Mission Hills Haikou. In order to improve customer experiences, operational strategy, and long-term loyalty, this research attempts to identify key satisfaction determinants and offer practical insights. In the end, the study looks at these elements in an effort to support the resort's expansion and sustainability in a cutthroat travel industry.

The literature now in publication emphasizes how important customer satisfaction is to a destination's long-term prosperity and reputation. Local consumers and visitors have different expectations of the same service environments, according to Sources of Customer Satisfaction with Shopping Malls: A Comparative Study of Different Customer Segments (Taylor et al., 2020). Tourists tend to appreciate novelty, excitement, and unusual experiences, whereas local customers frequently place a higher value on accessibility, price, and ease. For Mission Hills Haikou, which serves both locals and a wide variety of tourists, this distinction is very pertinent. The resort can create customized services and marketing plans that cater to the unique requirements of each group by having a thorough understanding of the elements that influence each group's level of satisfaction. This strategy is essential for increasing satisfaction and encouraging repeat visits.

In addition, Customer satisfaction is crucial to a destination's long-term prosperity and reputation, according to recently published literature. According to Sources of Customer Satisfaction with Shopping Malls: A Comparative Study of Different Customer Segments, local customers and tourists have different expectations for the same service surroundings (Taylor et al., 2020). Local customers usually place a larger priority on accessibility, pricing, and ease, while tourists tend to value novelty, excitement, and uncommon experiences. This distinction is highly relevant to Mission Hills Haikou, which caters to both locals and a diverse range of tourists. By having a deep grasp of the factors that affect each group's degree of satisfaction, the resort may develop tailored services and marketing strategies that meet their specific needs. This strategic branding could also help differentiate the resort from other competing destinations in the region.

Customer happiness has also been demonstrated to be influenced by social and environmental elements including atmosphere, safety, and cleanliness in addition to brand and service offers. A well-kept environment and a friendly, safe environment can have a big impact on customers' overall satisfaction and likelihood of returning, according to the study Attributes of Shopping Mall Image, Customer Satisfaction, and Mall Patronage for Selected Shopping Malls in Southern Gauteng, South Africa (Reddy & Singh, 2018). To guarantee that both residents and visitors have a satisfying and smooth experience, Mission Hills Haikou must uphold high standards in these areas. Increased happiness, return business, and improved reputation could result from the resort's operations including these elements.

This study aims to investigate how Mission Hills Haikou may use environmental variables, brand personality, and service quality to raise customer satisfaction levels for both locals and visitors. The research attempts to offer useful suggestions that might improve client experiences, encourage loyalty, and maintain the resort's competitiveness in a quickly changing tourism industry by recognizing the distinct expectations of each group and comprehending the primary satisfaction drivers.

Methods

Quantitative Method

Design

Surveys are used in this study's quantitative research design to collect information on Mission Hills Haikou customers' satisfaction in a number of areas. In order to find important characteristics that affect overall satisfaction, a descriptive approach was selected to investigate satisfaction patterns between locals and visitors.

Sampling

Convenience sampling was used to effectively collect information from a wide range of people. at order to provide a representative sample that included both locals and visitors, visitors were approached while they were at the shopping mall. This approach enabled a large sample size and fast access to a diverse group of responders, both of which are essential for spotting significant trends.

Instrumentation

The main tool for gathering data was a structured survey. Likert-scale questions were used to gauge respondents' satisfaction with a variety of aspects, including staff contact, amenities, cleanliness, and service quality. Locals and visitors were distinguished by demographic questionnaires. To guarantee its dependability and clarity, the survey was pre-tested.

Data Collection

In order to guarantee a diverse sample, surveys were distributed by qualified researchers at different times of the day during the data collection period in October 2024. To ensure real-time responses and reduce recall bias, the questionnaires were given to participants immediately while they were on-site.

Data Analysis

The collected data were analyzed using several statistical methods to provide a comprehensive understanding of customer satisfaction:

Descriptive Statistics. Measures such as mean, median, mode, variance, and Z-scores were calculated in Excel to provide a general overview of satisfaction levels across different dimensions and groups.

ANOVA (Analysis of Variance). This method was used to compare satisfaction levels across multiple groups (local residents vs. tourists) and identify significant differences. ANOVA was chosen due to its effectiveness in comparing means across more than two groups.

T-test. Paired and independent T-tests were conducted to compare satisfaction between local residents and tourists, as well as between different satisfaction attributes. This method was selected to determine if the differences observed between groups were statistically significant.

Weight Analysis. Weight analysis was performed to assess the relative importance of various satisfaction attributes. This method helped prioritize factors that had the greatest impact on overall satisfaction and guided further analysis on how to enhance the customer experience at Mission Hills Haikou.

These techniques were selected to guarantee that the analysis was thorough and suited to the particular goals of the study. In order to provide practical insights for enhancing the entire customer experience, we used a combination of descriptive statistics and inferential tests to uncover important satisfaction factors and significant variations between locals and visitors.

Qualitative Method

Design

Our group would visit the New City, and conducted interviews. In the context of the project's specific conduct, firstly, two sets of not entirely identical interview questions are designed for community residents and tourists respectively. For community residents, questions will include the length of time they have resided in the New City community, their perception of the living environment and security in the residential area. For tourists, questions will pay more attention to the convenience of transportation to New City, their shopping experience of Hainan specialty products in New City, and whether they are willing to be repeat customers of the New City shopping center. In addition, the interview questions will cover a variety of angles, such as transportation, accessibility, shopping experience, catering, and facilities.

Sampling

The sample size is 4 random people we meet in Mission Hills New City community. We are going to interview 2 community residents and 2 tourists. Each interview is designed to be approximately 16 minutes in length. By interviewing both residents and tourists, we can learn about overall satisfaction of New City from two different perspectives.

Instrumentation

In the research of Haikou Mission Hill New City Community, we adopted qualitative approach. 2 residents and 2 tourists were randomly picked. The interview questions, differentiated for each group, probed into aspects such as living environment and security for residents, and transportation, shopping of local products and revisit intention for tourists, also spanning across multiple aspects like catering and facilities.

Data Collection

The data collection process in this study involved recording the sound of interviews and transcribing these recordings into text documents (docx files). To ensure the organization and retrievability of data, we organized the files by respondent categories, with residents labeled as i1, i2, and tourists labeled as i3, i4. This process not only helped us systematically manage a large volume of qualitative data but also facilitated subsequent analysis efforts. Through this method, we were able to maintain the integrity of the data and provide a solid foundation for qualitative analysis.

Data Analysis

Qualitative analysis is a method of studying the deeper meanings and patterns behind social phenomena by analyzing non-numerical data (e.g., interview texts) to explore people's behaviors, perspectives, and experiences. This type of analysis is suitable for our study because it provides an effective understanding of the feelings of tourists and community residents and their overall satisfaction of Mission Hill New City.

As we have learned from class, the Microsoft Word software can be an effective tool to conduct qualitative data analysis. We can use Word to efficiently organize and analyze interview data. After that, Microsoft Excel can be a good tool to summarize analysis results and identify data patterns that can provide insights into the overall satisfaction of New City. Both Word and Excel are useful tools for the qualitative analysis in our study.

In the analysis process, the interview texts were first read carefully and then labeled using codes. By observing coding frequencies and relations between themes, we were able to identify key themes and patterns. Through this approach, we were able to gain insights into how satisfied the residents and tourists are with New City, as well as problems of and suggestions for New City.

Results

Quantitative Results

In our research, we give a fully consideration of the demographic factors and the z-scores of independent factors. According to the statistics, the age of the respondents to the questionnaire covers from people under 18 to people more than 40 years old. The main respondents are people from 18 to 40 years old, which can be bother local residents and tourists staying in Mission Hill New City. In terms of the individual frequency, the number of tourists is much higher than the number of local residents.

For other descriptive analysis, we took an effort in surveying for their satisfaction and some important parts that we found in our pilot survey such as the transportation. Our questionnaire covers dimensions of transportation convenience, environment and facilities, commerce and entertainment, hospitality, security management and the overall impression. According to the satisfaction scores of different factors, factors related to the commerce and entertainment stands out and make great impacts on the overall satisfaction while the hospitality diversity weighs less in the scores.

In the pilot research and interviews, we found that the transportation is one of the most important factors that many respondents and interviewees mentioned. In the descriptive statistics, we found that for both tourists and local residents, the Taxi/Ride-hailing, Bus and Self-driving are the main choices in transportation decisions of Mission Hill New City. For some tourists, tour bus is also a choice for them to reach there.

In ANOVA analysis, according to the results of the analysis of variance provided, the regression model is significant, and the independent variable as a whole has a significant impact on the dependent variable. Meanwhile, the residual part reflects the degree of error between the predicted value of the model and the actual observed value.

In the T-Test, the average score of residents was lower than that of visitors, reflecting a possible difference in satisfaction with Mission Hill between residents and visitors. This kind of difference may result from the staying time differences, overall impressions and activities that they did in Mission Hill New City. Meanwhile, the variance of tourists is large, indicating that the score of tourists is more dispersed than that of residents, and there may be a large difference in satisfaction among tourists on Mission Hill. This can be affected by not only the basic information like age or orientation of the trips, but also time spent and expectation towards travelling here.

The weighted proportion of safety and management, catering and service factors is high, which has a great impact on the overall satisfaction. Business and entertainment factors, environmental facilities overall factor weighted score is high, have a positive contribution to satisfaction. The score of transportation convenience factor is low, and it needs to be improved in the future. The high customer satisfaction score also directly reflects the people's satisfaction with Mission Hills Community.

Qualitative Results

The findings from the research on Mission Hills New City community present a comprehensive view of various aspects. In the area of transportation, a single mention was made regarding the parking lot condition, with a tourist (i4) stating that it is spacious and offers no parking pressure.

When it comes to catering, "Catering Richness" was mentioned 5 times, signifying a wide array of options from local to international cuisines as reported by both residents and tourists. "Catering Environment and Service" had 2 mentions, highlighting the pleasant environment and good service in restaurants. "Catering Price Reasonableness" was mentioned once, suggesting that prices are relatively fair compared to other tourist attractions. Also, "Ingredient Freshness" was noted once, emphasizing the use of fresh ingredients.

In the shopping experience domain, "Commodity Richness" had 2 mentions, indicating a diverse selection of goods. "Commodity Cost-performance" was mentioned 5 times, showing that the value for money of products is recognized. Additionally, "Commodity Features", "Commodity Creativity", "Convenience of Specialty Purchase", and "Shopping Atmosphere" each had 1 mention, respectively pointing out unique local souvenirs, creative clothing designs, convenient purchase of local specialties, and an artistic shopping atmosphere.

For facilities, "Rest Area Facilities" had 1 mention, emphasizing the comfortable setup. "Rest Area Quantity" was noted once, with a comment about insufficiency during peak times. "Rest Area Features and Quantity" had 1 mention, highlighting the distinctive design and good views. "Hygiene Condition" was mentioned 4 times, showing a good standard of cleanliness. "Entertainment Facility Features", "Children's Play Area Design", "Barrier-free Facilities", "Charging Ports", "Signboard Practicality", and "Mother and Baby Room Condition" each had 1 mention, respectively presenting unique and useful features.

In the residential area situation, "Greening" was mentioned 3 times, emphasizing the excellent and diverse greenery. "Security Measures" also had 3 mentions, highlighting the presence of 24-hour patrols, access control systems, and quick response to suspicious situations.

Regarding the overall impression, "Good Layout" was mentioned once, noting the reasonable layout of commercial and residential areas. "Good Atmosphere" had 2 mentions, highlighting the harmonious neighborhood and diverse atmosphere combining tourism, commerce, and residence. "Good Landscape" was mentioned once, with a tourist liking the outdoor landscape design suitable for photography.

Finally, in the problems and improvement suggestions, "Problems" had 4 mentions, including pet waste issues, mosquito and insect problems, lack of luggage storage, and insufficient road signs. "Suggestions" had 7 mentions, such as creating more children's play areas and better-equipped mother and baby rooms, adding indoor and outdoor entertainment facilities, establishing check-in spots, introducing tourist shuttle buses, and organizing events.

Discussion

Summary of Purpose and Results

Based on findings of quantitative research, there is a significant difference in satisfaction with Mission Hill between residents and visitors. This difference may stem from the different expectations and experiences that residents and visitors have for Mission Hill. For example, residents may be more concerned about the long-term stability and convenience of their communities, while tourists pay more attention to aspects such as tourism experience and facility services.

The analysis of the qualitative data from the interviews with residents and tourists in Mission Hills New City community uncovers multiple aspects related to their overall satisfaction.

On the positive side, Mission Hil New City community exhibits several strengths. In the catering aspect, the high frequency of mentions of catering richness indicates a wide variety of food choices, which, combined with satisfactory catering environment and service, reasonable catering price reasonableness, and ingredient freshness, enriches the overall experience and likely elevates satisfaction levels. The shopping experience is also favorable, with commodity richness and commodity cost - performance frequently noted. The unique features such as commodity features, commodity creativity, convenience of specialty purchase, and shopping atmosphere enhance the attractiveness. Regarding facilities, although there are concerns about rest area quantity during peak times, other elements like rest area facilities, rest area features and quantity, and the well - maintained hygiene condition, along with useful facility features like entertainment facility features, children's play area design, barrier - free facilities, charging ports, signboard practicality, and mother and baby room condition, improve convenience and comfort. The residential area benefits from excellent greening and reliable security measures, which are crucial for residents' well - being and satisfaction. The overall impression is also good, with aspects like good layout, good atmosphere, and good landscape being mentioned.

However, there are areas that demand improvement. The identified problems such as pet waste, mosquito and insect issues, lack of luggage storage, and insufficient road signs can cause inconvenience and discomfort, potentially influencing overall satisfaction. These issues might be more significant for tourists who have different expectations and are less familiar with the area.

Limitations

Limitation of quantitative research

The limitations of the quantitative research may include that the sample size is very small and that we have to combine some of factors to make analysis. This way, the research results can be susceptible to extreme values or special individuals if there's respondents that are strongly dissatisfied or satisfied. Also, for the weight analysis, we combined the specific factors into overall aspects, which can possibly avoid us from discovering small problems.

Limitation of qualitative research

The sample size of only four interviewees is relatively small, which may not be fully representative of the entire population of residents and tourists in the Mission Hills New Town community.

The data collected is based on self-reported experiences and perceptions, which might be subject to personal biases or inaccurate recollections.

The study focused only on a limited number of aspects such as transportation, catering, shopping, facilities, residential area, overall impression, problems, and suggestions. There could be other important factors influencing overall satisfaction that were not explored.

Recommendations

Recommendations for Professional Practice & Policy

From qualitative research, respondents suggested that the community management should strengthen pet waste management by increasing the cleaning frequency and implementing stricter regulations for pet owners. To address the mosquito and insect problem, a more comprehensive and regular pest control program could be carried out, especially during peak seasons. Regarding the lack of luggage storage, the establishment of designated luggage storage areas, perhaps near major entrances or tourist information centers, would be beneficial. To enhance the road sign situation, additional and more visible signs could be installed, especially in areas where navigation is likely to be confusing. Consider implementing the proposed improvement suggestions such as creating more family - friendly facilities like children's play areas and mother and baby rooms, adding entertainment facilities, and establishing check-in spots to draw more visitors and improve the overall experience.

Recommendations for Future Research

Studies can further explore the specific views and needs of residents and tourists on different aspects of Mission Hill, so as to make targeted improvements and upgrades to improve the overall satisfaction level. Mission Hills New City has its own advantages and disadvantages in different modules, and the importance and improvement direction of each module can be clarified through weighted analysis. Focus on improving weak links, such as convenient transportation; While maintaining the level of strength modules such as environmental facilities and customer satisfaction. This can increase the satisfaction of the entire community and gradually move towards a higher city rating standard.

Appendix C, Coding of Qualitative Data - Word Version

Interviewee #1 - Resident

My name is Zhang Yue. I'm 40 years old and a freelancer. I've been living in Mission Hills New City for nearly three years.

Since I live in this area, the shopping center in the New City is quite famous, so I often go shopping in the commercial area here. I go there about every two or three days.

When it comes to the shopping experience, there is a wide variety of goods, ranging from high-end fashion brands to affordable daily necessities (Commodity Richness). For example, I can buy internationally renowned cosmetic brands here, and I can also easily find inexpensive household items. Basically, it can meet all my daily shopping needs, whether it's purchasing office supplies for work or daily necessities for my family. In terms of prices, they vary. The prices of goods in some brand stores are naturally higher, but the quality is also guaranteed. The prices in some ordinary clothing stores and grocery stores are quite affordable, and the overall cost performance is good (Commodity Cost-performance). The stores I often visit include a boutique bookstore with a full range of books and a quiet environment, and a chain coffee shop where the coffee tastes great and the atmosphere is very cozy.

Regarding the facility configuration of the shopping center, the setting of the rest areas is quite satisfactory. The quantity can basically meet the demand, and the comfort level is good. There are many soft sofas and spacious rest tables and chairs, and there are usually green plants around, making people feel relaxed (Rest Area Facilities). The hygiene condition is especially praiseworthy. The public restrooms are not only clean and tidy but also cleaned regularly by dedicated staff who will provide sufficient hand sanitizer, toilet paper and other supplies (Hygiene Condition). I think another practical facility is the many signboards, which make it very convenient whether you're looking for a store or the parking lot (Signboard Practicality); however, perhaps it lacks some children's play facilities. If some small children's play areas could be set up in specific areas, it would be more friendly for families with children when they go shopping (Suggestions).

In terms of the dining experience, I've eaten in Mission Hills New City quite a number of times. There is a rich variety of catering options, covering local cuisines from all over the place (Catering Richness). In Chinese restaurants, the Cantonese cuisine tastes very authentic, and the spiciness of Sichuan cuisine is just right; Western restaurants also do a pretty good job with steaks and pizzas. Most of the restaurants have an elegant environment, stylish decoration, and relatively high service quality. The waiters are enthusiastic and considerate (Catering Environment and Service). In terms of prices, some high-end restaurants are a bit pricey, but there are also many restaurants with good cost performance, and the overall price system is relatively reasonable.

I feel very safe living in Mission Hills New City. The security measures here are in place. There are 24-hour security patrols in the community, and access control systems are set up at all entrances and exits. Strangers need to register or get the permission of residents to enter (Security Measures). Moreover, surveillance cameras are widely distributed within the community, almost covering all public areas, which makes me feel at ease.

The environment of the residential area is even more satisfying to me. The greening is quite excellent, with trees providing shade everywhere and a profusion of flowers and plants (Greening). There are carefully tended gardens and leisure trails in the community. I usually like to take a walk or jog on the trails and breathe fresh air. The hygiene is also well maintained. Garbage is cleaned up regularly by cleaning staff every day, and the roads and public areas are clean and tidy (Hygiene Condition). Besides, the neighborhood relationship is relatively harmonious. Everyone pays great attention to the maintenance of the public environment, which also adds points to the good living environment.

Overall, I have a very good impression of Mission Hills New City. I especially like the overall planning here. The layout of the commercial area and the residential area is quite reasonable (Good Layout). They neither interfere with each other nor can facilitate the lives of residents. The greening is wonderful, with lush trees and flowers everywhere (Greening), and the air is fresh. And the public security is good, making people feel very safe. However, there are also some minor deficiencies. For example, the traffic will be a bit congested during rush hours. Although the roads are wide, the traffic flow is heavy at times, which will still affect the travel efficiency. In addition, I think more cultural and art exhibitions and other activities can be added to enhance the cultural atmosphere of the whole New City, so that residents and tourists can enjoy the edification of culture and art after shopping and consumption.

Interviewee #2 - Resident

My name is Zhao Yifei. I'm 30 years old and a primary school teacher. I've been living in Mission Hills New City for two years.

I knew about Mission Hills New City because I live nearby. I usually go shopping in the commercial area of Mission Hills New City about once a week.

In terms of shopping, there is a fairly rich variety of goods, whether it's fashionable clothing, digital products or all kinds of food, you can find quite a few choices (Commodity Richness). Since I like sports, there are several sports equipment stores here where I can buy all kinds of professional sports equipment and clothing. The price level has a certain gradient. Some high-end brands have higher prices, but there are also many affordable stores to choose from. Generally speaking, the cost performance is okay (Commodity Cost-performance). There is a stationery store that I often go to, which has a wide variety of novel stationery, and it's very suitable for me to prepare teaching materials.

Regarding the rest areas in the shopping center, I think the quantity is a bit insufficient, especially during shopping peaks on weekends or holidays. Sometimes it's hard to find an empty seat to rest (Rest Area Quantity). The comfort level is quite good as the seats are comfortable. The hygiene condition is good on the whole. The public restrooms are clean and odorless, and the cleaning staff clean them in a timely manner (Hygiene Condition). A practical facility is the water dispensers that can be seen everywhere, which are convenient for people to replenish water; perhaps what's lacking is the number of mother and baby rooms. If there could be more mother and baby rooms equipped with more complete facilities, it would be better for families with babies (Suggestions).

In terms of the dining experience, I often eat here. The variety of catering is satisfying, ranging from fast food to high-end restaurants (Catering Richness). I like Japanese cuisine, and there is a Japanese restaurant here where the ingredients are fresh and the taste is authentic. Most of the restaurants are clean and tidy, beautifully decorated, and the service staff are quite enthusiastic and polite (Catering Environment and Service). In terms of prices, the prices of fast food are affordable, and although the prices of high-end restaurants are higher, considering the quality of dishes and the dining environment, etc., they are also reasonable.

I'm quite satisfied with the safety in Mission Hills New City. The property management has invested a lot in security. The security guards are well-trained. They not only keep strict guard at the entrance but also patrol the community regularly (Security Measures). Once they find any suspicious situation, they can respond quickly (Security Measures). The monitoring facilities are also very complete, which plays a good deterrent role in preventing crimes.

Regarding the environment of the residential area, it's good on the whole. The greening landscapes are rich and diverse, and different flowers bloom in different seasons (Greening), giving people a pleasant visual experience. However, there are also some small flaws in the environment. For example, the pet management can be strengthened a bit. Occasionally, there will be situations where pets defecate or urinate in public areas and are not cleaned up in time (Problems). Also, in summer, the mosquito and insect prevention work can be done more meticulously. Although the property management has carried out disinfection, there are still some mosquito and insect problems (Problems). But generally speaking, the residential environment is quite livable, and I'm quite comfortable living here.

Overall, I have a good impression of Mission Hills New City. I really like the community atmosphere here. The neighbors are quite harmonious (Good Atmosphere), and there are often some community-organized activities that enhance everyone's feelings. What I'm not satisfied with is that there are a bit few entertainment facilities. Besides the cinema, there aren't many other large entertainment venues. If it can be improved, I hope that some indoor and outdoor entertainment facilities can be added, such as an indoor e-sports hall or an outdoor small amusement park (Suggestions), so that residents and tourists of different age groups can have more entertainment options. It would also be nice to set up more free public Wi-Fi hotspots for people to use the Internet outdoors.

My name is Zhao Xiaoqing. I'm 28 years old and a self-media blogger. Usually, I mainly share travel and lifestyle content. This time, I came to Mission Hills New City to explore some fresh and interesting places for my fans and also to relax myself.

In the commercial area of Mission Hills New City, I've been shopping quite frequently these days. I almost go shopping every day. The variety of goods here has given me many surprises. There are a lot of local characteristic souvenirs and handicrafts, which are rather hard to find in other places (Commodity Features). It's really great for someone like me who likes to collect characteristic items. There are also quite a number of fashionable clothing stores, and the styles in them keep up with the international fashion trends. In terms of prices, the prices of characteristic souvenirs are quite reasonable and can be easily accepted by tourists (Commodity Cost-performance). The prices of clothing stores are similar to those in big city shopping malls. Considering its tourism attributes, the cost performance is okay (Commodity Cost-performance). I've often visited a small store selling Hainan characteristic accessories these days. The accessories in it are delicate and unique.

When it comes to the rest areas in the shopping center, I think the design of the rest areas is quite distinctive. Many rest areas offer nice views, and the comfort level is high (Rest Area Features). The hygiene condition is excellent. The public restrooms are not only clean but also decorated in a stylish way, with scented candles and green plants as embellishments (Hygiene Condition). There are many charging ports among the practical facilities, which are convenient for tourists to charge their electronic devices at any time (Charging Ports); if there's anything lacking, it might be the lack of luggage storage areas. If tourists, like me, carry a lot of filming equipment and luggage, it will be a bit inconvenient when shopping and having fun (Problems).

The dining experience has left an even deeper impression on me. There is an extremely rich variety of catering, ranging from Hainan local cuisine like coconut chicken and Qingbuliang to international cuisines such as Western food and Japanese food (Catering Richness). I've tried several restaurants. The local cuisine restaurants allow me to taste the most authentic Hainan flavor, and the waiters will enthusiastically introduce the origin and eating methods of the dishes to me. The environment of Western restaurants is elegant and romantic, and the dishes are elaborately prepared. In terms of prices, the prices of local characteristic catering are affordable, and the prices of international catering are not too high compared with those in other tourist attractions (Catering Price Reasonableness).

Overall, I have an extremely good impression of Mission Hills New City. I especially like the diverse atmosphere here that combines tourism, commerce and residence, which makes people feel both energetic and comfortable (Good Atmosphere). If I'm to give some improvement suggestions, I think some internet-famous check-in spots can be created, such as some creative art sculptures or characteristic graffiti walls (Suggestions), so that more tourists can be attracted to take pictures and check in, and better dissemination effects can be achieved on the Internet. It would also be nice to add some tourist shuttle buses to make it convenient for tourists to directly reach Mission Hills New City from hotels or other scenic spots (Suggestions).

Hello, I'm a 40-year-old freelance photographer from Shenyang. I came to Hainan this time to look for creative inspiration. After seeing the introduction of Mission Hills New City online, I decided to come here for a visit. This is my first time here.

I flew to Sanya first and played there for a few days. Then I rented a car and drove here by myself. The scenery along the way was nice and the road conditions were good. However, there were a bit few road signs near Mission Hills New City (Problems). I followed the navigation, but I almost took the wrong turn at a fork in the road. I don't know much about the public transportation, but the parking lot is really spacious and there's no pressure to park (Parking Lot Condition). The overall navigation information is okay, but the navigation for some characteristic areas inside the New City could be more precise. For example, it took me quite a while to find a certain niche art exhibition area.

In terms of shopping, I found some fashion clothing brands that incorporate Hainan elements, and their designs are very creative (Commodity Creativity). Compared with Shenyang, the prices of some characteristic handicrafts here are of high cost performance (Commodity Cost-performance), and it's very convenient to buy Hainan specialties. You can buy all of them at one stop in the specialty market of the shopping mall (Convenience of Specialty Purchase). Compared with the commercial centers in Shenyang, the shopping atmosphere here is more artistic. There are many art installations and characteristic stores, which make me feel fresh (Shopping Atmosphere). I really like this atmosphere.

In terms of entertainment and leisure facilities, the sound effect in the cinema is excellent, and the environment of the screening hall is very distinctive (Entertainment Facility Features). There is a rich variety of restaurants that make me feel dazzled (Catering Richness). I tasted Hainan's Zao Baocu hot pot, and its unique flavor left a lasting impression on me. The theme design of the children's play area is very interesting (Children's Play Area Design). I couldn't help taking some pictures in it. I used the mother and baby room, and its decoration is very cute and the facilities are very user-friendly. It's especially convenient to use (Mother and Baby Room Condition). The barrier-free facilities are also quite in place. Whether it's the blind path or the barrier-free elevator, you can see the thoughtfulness of the design (Barrier-free Facilities).

I will definitely recommend Mission Hills New City to my fellow photographers and friends. This place is full of the atmosphere that combines art and nature, which is very inspiring for my creation. I will definitely come back again if I have the chance, and I'll stay here for a few days to explore more creative materials.

In terms of catering, I'm very satisfied with the catering here. There is not only a rich variety of catering (Catering Richness), but also the ingredients are very fresh (Ingredient Freshness). The environments of restaurants are all distinctive. Some of them offer a beautiful view of the garden, and the service is also very considerate. The prices are relatively worth it.

Overall, I have an excellent impression of Mission Hills New City. I especially love the outdoor landscape design here, which is very suitable for taking pictures (Good Landscape). If I'm to give improvement suggestions, I hope some photography check-in spots can be created, such as setting up some long corridors with unique light and shadow effects or creative background walls (Suggestions), which are convenient for tourists to take pictures as souvenirs. Besides, the shopping mall can organize some photography competitions or art exhibitions to attract more art lovers like me (Suggestions).
